Fitting an encoding model
Given a model that builds complete representations of stimuli, rich tasks provide the information to predict brain responses as a function of stimuli.

Modeling new stimuli
The encoding model can be applied to stimuli with different properties. It yields brain responses that characterizes corresponding mental processes.